Attorneys for Applicants
Aniplex, Inc., and Toho Co., Ltd.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

In re Ex Parte Application of

Aniplex Inc., a Japanese corporation, and
Toho Co., Ltd., a Japanese corporation,

Applicants.

Case No.:

DECLARATION OF YUMA
TAKAHASHI IN SUPPORT OF
APPLICANTS' EX PARTE
APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER
PURSUANT TO 28 U.S.C. § 1782
AUTHORIZING DISCOVERY FOR USE IN FOREIGN PROCEEDINGS

1 I, Yuma Takahashi, declare as follows:

2 1. I am Senior Vice President of Produce Group 2 of Aniplex Inc.
3 (“Aniplex”). My job responsibilities include producing animation projects, managing the 4 rights to the animation produced, and responding to copyright infringements. Our
5 company has retained Hiroyuke Nakajima to advise us on the matters addressed below,
6 and to represent us in legal proceedings in Japan about them. I am working with him as
7 the person in charge of this matter for Aniplex.

8 2. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth in this Declaration and, if 9 called as a witness, could and would testify competently to such facts under oath.

10 3. I submit this declaration in support of the Ex Parte Application by 11 Applicants for an Order Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1782 Authorizing Discovery for Use in 12 Foreign Proceedings (hereinafter “Application”).

13 4. Applicant Aniplex is a Japanese corporation that engages in the business,
14 among others, of producing and releasing “anime” TV series (i.e., various animated,
15 Japanese-language television series). The intended initial audiences for these anime TV
16 series are television viewers in Japan, where such anime TV series are popular with those 17 in the age groups from teenagers to those in their forties.

18 5. Each such anime TV series, each episode of each anime TV series, and 19 each image in each episode, are protected by Japanese copyright law. Aniplex is the 20 holder of the Japanese copyright of its anime TV series.

21 6. As described in more detail below, Aniplex has been the victim of 22 copyright infringement as to its anime TV series, via posts made by anonymous twitter
23 users on X in which leaked images from unreleased episodes (or unreleased versions of 24 episodes) of the anime TV series were posted without authorization from Aniplex.

25 7. The background these infringements is as follows. Typically, each
26 episode of the subject anime TV series was released in the following fashion:

27

28

- a. An episode of an anime TV series has a “release date.” The episode, and the images in the episode, are not publicly available until the release of the episode on the release date.
- b. On an episode’s release date, the episode is first released nationwide in Japan on broadcast television. The official animation broadcast release is made at a set time, agreed to in advance by the broadcast television stations, and identified in advance to their viewers.
- c. After the broadcast release, the episode is released nationwide in Japan on streaming services (e.g., Netflix, Amazon Prime Video, and Hulu). The official animation streaming release is made at a set time (usually midnight (12:00 a.m.) on the next day), agreed to in advance by the streaming services, and identified in advance to their viewers.
- d. In order that the broadcast TV stations, and the streaming services, can release the episode at the applicable release date and time, each episode is made available to the broadcast TV stations and streaming services in advance of the release. However, the broadcast TV stations, and the streaming services, do not have authorization from Applicants to release an episode, or frames from an episode, to the public prior to the applicable official release date and time.

8. Aniplex was able to identify the infringements detailed below in three ways:

- a. First, and most simply, where an image from an episode is posted on X by a twitter user prior to the episode’s release date, the posting is unauthorized and an infringement.
- b. Second, sometimes an episode is first provided to broadcast TV stations and streaming services with deliberately erroneous information in the episode’s credits. Then, prior to the release date and

1 time, another version of the episode, with correct credits, is provided
2 to the broadcast TV stations and streaming services to be used for the
3 release. In such circumstances, the version with the deliberately
4 erroneous credits was never authorized for release, and any image
5 posted on X of those erroneous credits is unauthorized and an
6 infringement.

7 c. Third, some of the infringement was identified by the appearance of 8 “watermarks” in a posted image of an episode. A “watermark” in an
9 anime image typically appears as a circle in a set of known locations
10 within the image. A watermark typically is barely perceptible, or not 11 perceptible, in an image, but its appearance in the image can be 12 confirmed by brightening the image. As an example, attached
13 collectively hereto as Exhibit 1 are four pages. The first page shows
14 an official Aniplex image with possible locations for watermarks, the 15 second page is a post on X, the third page is the image from the post, 16 marked to show where a watermark will appear once the page is
17 brightened, and the fourth page is the brightened image from the post,
18 where the watermark is visible. Where infringement was detected here
19 by a watermark, that was possible because: (i) the version of the 20 episodes provided to broadcast TV stations did not have watermarks;
21 (ii) the version of the episodes provided to streaming services did have 22 watermarks; and (iii) the infringing posts were posted before the 23 streaming release time and date. In other words the posted images
24 came from a streaming version of the episode, not the broadcast
25 version, at a time where the streaming version was not authorized for 26 release, and the post of the image on X was unauthorized and an
27 infringement.
28

1 9. After the infringing postings on X (identified below) were discovered by
 2 members of Aniplex’s anime production group, including myself, the evidence was
 3 preserved. We then consulted with the Content Overseas Distribution Association
 4 (“CODA”), a rights-holders' organization to which many Japanese animation companies
 5 belong, because of the need for legal procedures in order to identify the infringers.
 6 CODA is a well-known, Japanese government-supported, rights-protection organization
 7 with a track record of exposing cases of infringement of Japanese manga and anime
 8 rights. Our legal department and CODA checked the official release dates and times, and 9 found that the infringing postings were made prior to those official release dates and 10 times, as identified below. Therefore, we believe that the posters somehow obtained the 11 data of the anime episodes prior to the official releases, and illegally posted the infringing
 12 contents. Since I was part of the above investigation, I can speak with confidence that 13 these infringing postings were illegal myself.

14 Anonymous Twitter Users Who Infringed Aniplex’s Japanese Copyright Rights

15 10. One of Aniplex’s anime-TV-series is “Demon Slayer.”

16 11. Attached collectively hereto as Exhibit 2 are: (a) an official announcement

- d. The official broadcast release date and time for the 7th episode of the 4th season of Demon Slayer (Episode 7”) was May 21, 2023 at 11:15 p.m. (Japan time). The official streaming release date and time was 45 minutes later, i.e., 12:00 a.m. (Japan time) on May 22, 2023.
- e. The official broadcast release date and time for the 8th episode of the 4th season of Demon Slayer was May 28, 2023 at 11:15 p.m. (Japan time). The official streaming release date and time at midnight, i.e., 12:00 a.m. (Japan time) on May 29, 2023.
